TEACHING AND COURSE DEVELOPMENT

Yeshiva University, Sy Syms School of Business (2021 to present)

Total enrollment across courses: 529 students.

“Leading with Emotional and Moral Intelligence”

MBA.

Developed as a new course (I developed the leadership section).

Leading with Emotional and Moral Intelligence is a core course in the MBA program. The course is intensive. In seven weeks, it covers leadership (first three weeks, which I teach), emotional intelligence (second three weeks, taught by faculty from the School of Social Work), and business ethics (last week, taught by faculty from the Accounting Department). The course is unique to Sy Syms in its scope and depth.

Course enrollment by term:

Semester	Course Code	N. Students Enrolled
Fall 2024	MAN5483	16
Spring 2024	MAN7783	22
Fall 2023	MAN7783	18

Spring 2023	MAN7783	11
Fall 2022	MAN7783	13
Spring 2022	MAN7783	16
Fall 2021	MAN7783	5

“Leadership”

Undergraduate.

Developed as a new course.

Leadership is an elective in the Strategy & Entrepreneurship Department. The course teaches the fundamentals of leadership, from the historical emergence of leaders at the dawn of civilization to modern leadership theories in business and politics. The course concludes with practical applications to prepare students for the job market and graduate studies. The course readings are drawn from my own work and from renowned colleagues in economics, political science, business, and psychology. Instruction relies on in-class discussion and leadership exercises.

“Principles of Strategy”

Undergraduate.

Developed in the Strategy & Entrepreneurship Department.

Principles of Strategy is the first level core course for the Strategy & Entrepreneurship program. The course covers the principles of management strategy, including Porter’s five forces, differentiation and competition, and corporate strategy. Students are trained to understand the firm strategically across functional areas such as marketing, accounting, finance, and data analysis. Readings include case studies, academic papers, lecture notes, and professor’s writing in outlets such as Harvard Business Review. Instruction relies on in-class applied exercises and discussions.

“Business Strategy & Advanced Leadership”

MBA.

Developed as a new course.

Business Strategy & Advanced Leadership was a core course of the previous MBA program. The course combined the topics in leadership from the “Leading with Emotional and Moral Intelligence” and “Leadership” courses, applied to the strategic management of organizations. The objective of the course was for students to understand the concepts of power and vulnerability, and highlight the importance of delegation, empowerment, and developing awareness of their own behaviors.
